Assessments of conservation status at the European level (all biogeographical regions - EU25)

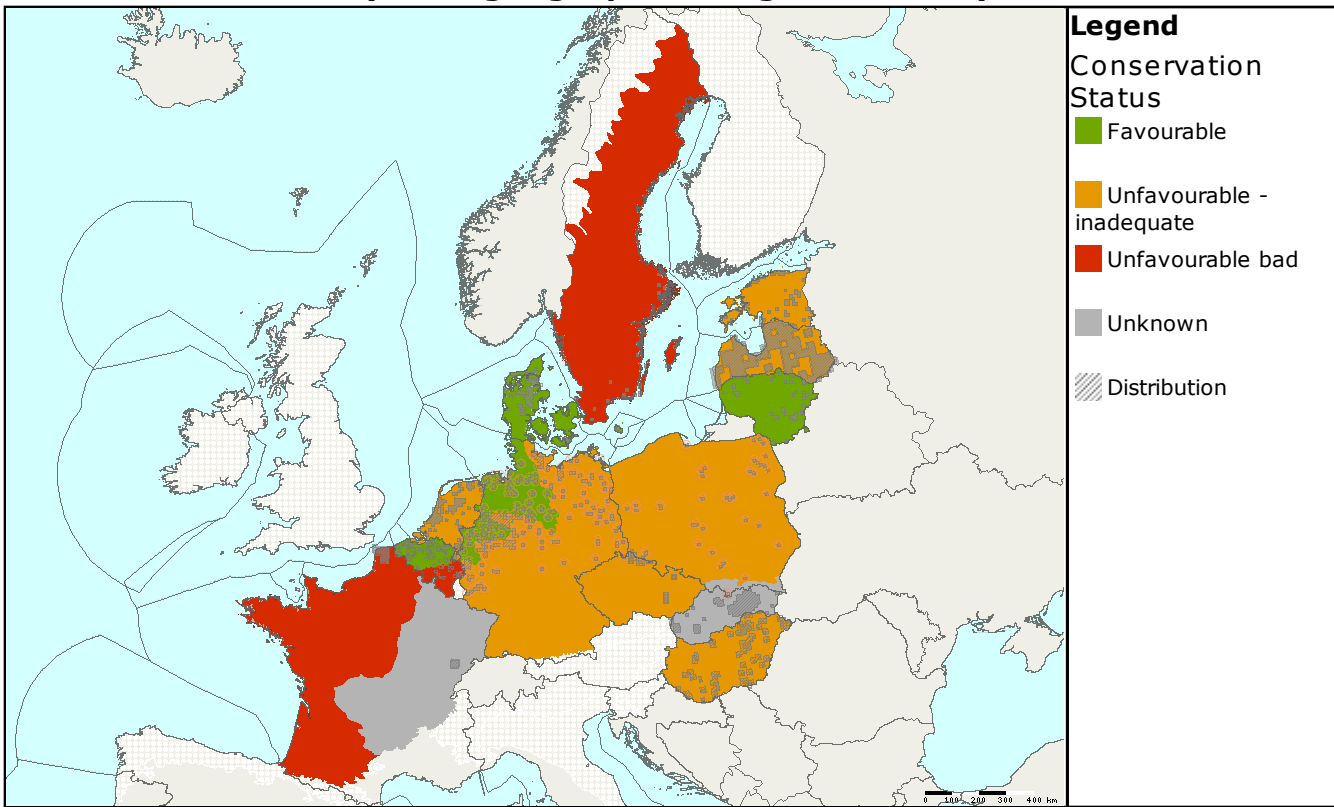

MS	Region	Conservation status assessment					Population size & unit	Population Trend
		Range	Population	Habitat	Future prospects	Overall
EU25	ALP						106 grids
EU25	BOR						575 grids
EU25	CON						396 grids
EU25	PAN						257 grids
EU25	ATL						425 grids

The pond bat is widely spread across Europe and (North) Asia. It lives in lowland areas nearby waters, meadows and woods where it forages on insects.

In all geographical regions (Alpine, Atlantic, Boreal, Continental and Pannonian) its overall status is assessed as ‘unknown’ or ‘inadequate’. In some countries the population trend is positive while in many others it is reported as negative. Despite the positive population trends in Belgium, Germany and Denmark the overall population trend is negative. The IUCN conservation status has recently changed from ‘Vulnerable’ to ‘Near Threatened’.
